

WESTERLY

A year ago all Westerly was busy in celebrating the Old Home Week celebration, in delayed observance of the two hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the founding of the town. It was supposed that the incentive to create interest in all that pertained to the town would result in the establishment of a public museum; a substantial fire-proof building where valuable historic relics could be preserved and exhibited for the interest and benefit of the general public. Already there is substantial nucleus for such a museum in the way of historical articles in the homes of the Westerly Memorial and Library association and there are others in many homes in Westerly and vicinity that would be presented or loaned to a local museum. Such an exhibit-tion would attract many people to Westerly and would be a substantial benefit to the town.

A member of the historical society stated Friday that he had been considering whether it would be advisable for the society to take the initiative in this public matter, and came to the conclusion that better results must follow the movement started by the Westerly Board of Trade, which is a semi-public organization and closely allied with the town council in advancing the best interests of the town. He declared that it was his purpose to arouse interest in this project in the hope of having the movement well under way before the Watch Hill season closes, as he believed the summer residents would aid in this commendable project.

Colonel Arthur N. Nash of Westerly, J. H. Dickerson of Boston and J. E. Higgins of Boston, all with military experience, have been selected as judges of the competitive drills of the Knights Templar, at the big demonstration in Providence next Thursday. There have been eight entries, the commanderies from Newport, Springfield (2); Boston (2); Providence, Melrose, Dorchester and Pittsfield. The prizes are three handsome silver cups. This drill is in connection with the annual convocation of the Knights Templar of Massachusetts and Rhode Island.

Treasurer Arthur L. Perry, of the Washington Trust company, Westerly, was elected vice president of the Rhode Island Bankers' association, held at the Pomphrey club Thursday. The other officers elected are: George W. Gardner, Providence, president; C. H. W. Mandeville, Providence, treasurer; Edward A. Brown of Newport, Thomas H. West of Providence, member executive council for three years.

At the after-dinner gathering the speakers were Michael P. Dooley, the retiring president of the association; P. N. Shepherd, secretary, United States Chamber of Commerce; Rt. Rev. William A. Hickey, coadjutor bishop of the Catholic diocese of Providence; Mayor Joseph H. Gahner of Providence; Walter F. Angell, Richard B. Comstock and Geo. W. Gardner, of Providence.

Dr. Byron T. Richards, secretary of the state board of health has notified Dr. Samuel C. Webster, superintendent of health of the town of Westerly, in connection with the other health officers of the state, that the law must be enforced which requires successful vaccination of children before enrollment in the public schools. Dr. Richards has received information that some schools are allowing attendance of children who have not been vaccinated. Dr. Richards states that during the past winter small pox has been all too prevalent in many parts of the country, and that it is the same old story of the few unvaccinated individuals who menace any community.

The well-drilled degree team of Narragansett council, Knights of Columbus, Westerly, will exemplify the third degree at a meeting of White Cross council, Norwich, Monday evening. This degree work is usually performed on Sunday afternoons, but is deferred this instance by reason of a game of baseball. The ball nine of White Cross council is scheduled for a game Sunday afternoon at Bradford, with the team of that village affiliated with the Rhode Island State Baseball League, and many knights of the Rose of New England expect to attend that game.

Rev. Edmund J. Cleveland, pastor of the Episcopal church, conducted the funeral service of William Needham, at his home in Granite street. The bearers were representatives of the Granite Tavern union and interment was at River Bend. Mr. Needham was born in England, fifty-seven years ago. In 1884 he married Katherine Kennealy, of New London. He is survived by his wife, a son, John W., and two daughters, Helen Katherine Needham of Westerly, and Mrs. Orrin Spencer of Stonington.

SPRING SALE OF Silk and Muslin Lingerie BEGINS THIS MORNING

An offering of scores of the daintiest and most desirable Undergarments, in both Silks and Cottons of finest texture, at prices which are considerably lowered.

Designs are new and the pretty laces and embroideries add a note of beauty which makes them well nigh irresistible. With Summertime just around the corner, a supply laid in now will be a source of satisfaction for a long time to come. In variety, in quality, and in the extreme lowness of the prices you will find just what you require.

ENVELOPE CHEMISES

The most popular garment in all the list, and consequently shown in a greater profusion of styles than any other. We have many pretty models, in pink or white Batiste, Voile and Windsor Creps, in round neck, surplice or bodice styles. In the ornamentation, except in the strictly tailored models, pretty hemstitching, laces, embroideries, and inserts of organdie lend dainty touches and some show considerable hand work.

THE PRICES ARE MANY AND VERY LOW
$1.25, $1.50, $2.00, $2.50, $2.98, $3.50, $3.98

NIGHT ROBES

As dainty and as varied in style as the Chemises, the Night Robes also display as great a range of prices and the same great value for the money. Windsor Crepe, fine Batiste, Voile and Cambric are the materials used, in white or pink, with touches of embroideries, laces or organdie inserts, and fine hemstitching. Bodice, surplice and round neck styles are those in greatest favor, and are shown in wonderful variety—

$1.19, $1.39, $1.79, $2.50, $2.98, $3.98 to $5.98

PETTICOATS

Yes, they still wear them, and these exquisite models are effectively trimmed with the prettiest of laces and embroideries. In addition to the regular Skirts we show a very attractive assortment of the new sport styles, in pique and saten. These are rather severely tailored, and quite the thing—

Prices From $1.19 to $6.98

BLOOMERS

Easily the most popular Undergarment of the present day is the Bloomer, and the variety of the weaves are evidence of the great demand. We have arranged a charming selection of them in Windsor and Witchery Crepe, Batiste, Voile and Seco Silk, in various trimmed and tailored models—

Prices From 69c to $3.50

The May Sale of Silk Underwear

Exquisite Garments In Many Exclusive Styles

This is a most exclusive showing of Silk Underwear and is as difficult to describe as a flower garden, with its exquisite variations, gradation of color and texture. Georgette, soft and filmy; Crepe de Chine with its dull lustre; and other silky weaves have been used separately or in combination to make the display complete. There are charming panel effects of Georgette over Satin, and Crepe de Chine combined with laces and nets; there are two-toned ribbons, in delicate pastelle shades of flesh and orchid and blue; in fact a bewildering array of the prettiest, daintiest underwear you ever saw.

ENVELOPE CHEMISES $3.98 to $8.98
CAMISOLES $1.49 to $4.98
NIGHT ROBES $6.50 to $25.00

A SALE OF AEROPLANE CLOTH IN COLORS

MADE IN ENGLAND

Worth Fully $1.49 a Yard

Only 89c

It was made for the British Army, for Aeroplane wings, and was woven to stand a test of 60 pounds to the square inch. Another requirement was that it should not be too heavy. Hence we have here a firmly woven texture, made of long staple Sea Island Cotton—the best obtainable—highly mercerized and finished in really beautiful colors—including

PONGEE—CADET—LIGHT BLUE
PINK—HELIOTROPE—CREAM

These colors are fast, and the cloth is so highly mercerized that it looks like a fine silk.
